

The Routledge Round Table Commonwealth Studentship Award at the Institute of Commonwealth Studies

The Institute of Commonwealth Studies and Routledge are delighted to announce that Esther Njenga has been awarded the inaugural Routledge Round Table Commonwealth Studentship Award.

The Routledge/ Round Table award will be made from this year onwards, in celebration of the publisher's continuing association with The Round Table, the Commonwealth Journal of International Affairs, and the journal's connection with the Institute. The award is open to students from Commonwealth countries outside the United Kingdom, who have been accepted by the Institute for the MA course in Understanding and Securing Human Rights.

Dr David Green, Global Publishing Director at Routledge said, "It is a privilege to sponsor this award on behalf of The Round Table. The award represents the Journal's continued contribution to Commonwealth scholarship in its centenary year and, in supporting an MA student at the ICS, looks to the Commonwealth of the future. We wish Esther Njenga the best of luck in her studies as the first Round Table Scholar."

Richard Bourne, Chair of the Round Table said, "The Round Table is thrilled at this benefaction from our publisher at the start of our centenary year. This Studentship goes to a worthy winner, and is a tangible contribution to the future of the Commonwealth and its premier journal."

The Round Table journal is Britain's oldest international affairs journal and provides analysis and commentary on all aspects of international affairs. The journal is also the major source for coverage of policy issues concerning the contemporary Commonwealth and its role in international affairs.

For further information on The Round Table please visit www.tandf.co.uk/journals/ctr or contact Joanna Woodcock, Marketing Executive for The Round Table at Routledge (Joanna.Woodcock@tandf.co.uk).

For further information on the MA Course in Understanding and Securing Human Rights, please contact Marcus Erridge, Postgraduate Student Officer (Marcus.Erridge@sas.ac.uk).